But I found a nightmare instead.

The streets were filled with smoke and fire,

And the air was heavy with dread.

I saw people running and screaming,

Their faces etched with pain.

I saw buildings collapsing,

And lives being lost in vain.

I was terrified, confused, and lost,

I didn't know what to do.

But then I saw a glimmer of hope,

In the eyes of a stranger who.

She took my hand and led me to safety,

And she told me that I was not alone.

She said that we would get through this together,

And that we would rebuild our lives.

I don't know what her name was,

But I will never forget her kindness.

She showed me that even in the darkest of times,

There is always hope.

I am now a survivor of the Jakarta bombings,

And I am grateful for the life that I have.

I am grateful for the stranger who saved me,

And for the friends and family who have supported me.

I am grateful for the city of Jakarta,

And for the resilience of its people.

We have come a long way since that fateful day,

But we will never forget.

We will always remember the victims,

And we will always honor their memory.

We will continue to work together to build a better future,

A future where violence and terror have no place.

We will continue to show the world that Jakarta is a city of hope and resilience.

We will continue to come together,

As one people, united in our strength.

And we will continue to strive for a better tomorrow.
