The sida lei is a traditional Hawaiian lei made from the dried leaves of the sida plant. It is a symbol of love, friendship, and respect, and is often given as a gift to mark special occasions such as weddings, graduations, and birthdays.

The sida plant is a native to Hawaii, and its leaves have been used for centuries to make leis. The leaves are first dried in the sun, and then strung together on a thread or cord. The resulting lei is a beautiful and fragrant work of art that can be worn for hours or even days.

In his book The Epilogue, Dr. Stanton tells the story of the sida lei, from its origins in ancient Hawaii to its continued significance in modern Hawaiian culture. The book is beautifully illustrated with stunning photography of sida leis and the people who make them. Dr. Stanton's engaging text provides a wealth of information about the sida plant, the history of the sida lei, and the cultural significance of this beautiful tradition.

The Epilogue is a must-read for anyone interested in Hawaiian culture, history, or music. It is a beautiful book that celebrates the beauty and resilience of the Hawaiian people.
